

Call for Papers

Sixth International Conference on MIGRATION AND DEVELOPMENT

Ifrane (Morocco), May 18-19, 2013.

The French Development Agency (AFD) Research Department, the World Bank Development Research Group (DECRG), the Center for Global Development (CDG) and the Center for Mediterranean Integration (CMI) are jointly organizing the Sixth International Conference on “Migration and Development”, which will take place at Al Akhawayn University in Ifrane, Morocco. The conference is devoted to investigating channels through which international migration affects economic and social outcomes of developing countries. Possible topics include social networks and diaspora externalities, remittances, return migration, migration and the pattern of trade/FDI, brain drain, migration and institutional/technological change, migration and development in the MENA region, and the effect of emigration on poverty, inequality, and human capital formation in developing countries. A selection of papers from the conference will be considered for a special issue of The Scandinavian Journal of Economics.
